Park District Asks Visitors to Carry Cloth Face Coverings in Parks, Wear When Within Six Feet of Others
Local Health Agencies Issue New "Cover Your Face" Orders

Thursday, April 23, 2020 (Oakland, CA) – On Friday, April 17, 2020, a "Cover Your Face" order was issued for five Bay Area counties – San Francisco, San Mateo, Marin, Contra Costa, and Alameda – asking the public to carry cloth face coverings and wear them within six feet of others, including when hiking, running, and biking.

The new order recommends that all people engaged in outdoor recreation "bring a Face Covering and wear that Face Covering in circumstances where it is difficult to maintain compliance with social distancing requirements, and that they carry the Face Covering in a visible and readily accessible location, such as around the person's neck or in a pocket for such use."

Established in Concord:

Thurgood Marshall Regional Park – Home of the Port Chicago 50

REGIONAL PARK AT FORMER CONCORD NAVAL WEAPONS STATION

Named after First Black Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall and Port Chicago 50

On Tuesday, June 1, 2021, the Park District Board of Directors officially named the new regional park at the former Concord Naval Weapons Station “Thurgood Marshall Regional Park – Home of the Port Chicago 50.”

The naming recognizes the service and bravery of the young African American sailors who served their country, both by serving in the US Military during WWII, and also by standing up to the US Military’s racially discriminatory policies of the day. Their courage, and the advocacy of NAACP attorney Thurgood Marshall on their behalf, ultimately led to the desegregation of the military and changed the course of history.

On July 17, 1944, over 5,000 tons of munitions exploded at Port Chicago Naval Magazine, killing 320 mostly enlisted African American sailors. At the time, sailors were segregated and only African Americans loaded the munitions onto the ships.

The surviving sailors were ordered to return to work loading munitions at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard under continued unsafe working conditions and inadequate training. Fifty of the sailors, in an act of protest against the discriminatory policies of the segregated Navy, refused to return to work and were charged with mutiny and ultimately dishonorably discharged.

The plan for the newly named park includes a joint visitor center with the National Park Service highlighting the history of the Port Chicago Naval Magazine National Memorial and Diablo Valley, along with staging areas, and several miles of recreational trails for hiking, biking, and nature viewing. The Park District is partnering with the National Park Service on the future visitor center in the park where the Port Chicago Disaster story will be told, along with stories of the land, including its military, agricultural, and natural history, and stories of the Chupcan people who lived there. Federal and state funding are needed to build the joint visitor center at the new 2,500-acre park.

The Park District is currently designing road improvements and plans to open a portion of the park, south of Bailey Road, within the next two to three years.

Working Together to Protect Communities

We are members of the Hills Emergency Forum (HEF), a combination of fire agencies and public-private agencies working together to share resources, information and expertise to protect communities in the East Bay hills. In May 2018, an unusual fire season hit the hills. We need your help to create defensible space around your home, understand fire conditions, and have an evacuation plan ready to go.

The season and wildfire fires are more unpredictable, and 2018 is shaping up to be one of its most catastrophic. The reason is California's history. With over 6,000 fires occurring in California each year, we are still in the red of a very dangerous fire season. On August 4, 2018 a unusual disaster was declared in Northern California, due to the massive wildfires here. In fact, fire season is expected to last all year. The most severe months may still be ahead.

With our current dry conditions and upcoming seasonal Diablo winds, we must prepare for a large wildfire season. We need your help in creating defensible space around your home, preparing your family and pets for evacuation, and being especially diligent during extreme fire weather conditions. If you are a visitor to your nearby East Bay Regional Park, East Bay Municipal Utility District or UC Berkeley, know their rules during fire season.

Fire Weather Watch

Entire San Francisco Bay Area & Central Coast
11 AM PDT Sunday – 11 AM PDT Tuesday

- Fast moving high-based thunderstorms may lead to a risk of dry lightning and new fire starts
- Erratic gusty winds may accompany stronger thunderstorms
- Generally light except breezy onshore winds near coast
- Increase in wildfire starts in proximity to thunderstorms due to dry lightning
- Fires may spread rapidly due to dry fuels and breezy onshore winds
