The Regional Parks Foundation, thanks to a generous grant from the J.M. Long Foundation, was able to fund the development of this new and expanded children's playground at the popular 307-acre Miller/Knox Regional Shoreline. The first non-profit established in the United States for the purpose of supporting a park agency, the Regional Parks Foundation is proud to celebrate its 40 successful years of raising private support for the parks and programs of the East Bay Regional Park District. The J.M. Long Foundation's partnership in this project is especially significant as 75 years ago the young Joseph M. Long, then the Assistant City Manager of Berkeley, was actively involved in the citizens' movement that led to the founding of the East Bay Regional Park District. This partnership project between the Regional Parks Foundation and the J.M. Long Foundation creates both a fitting and timely tribute to the East Bay Regional Park District as it celebrates the 75th anniversary of its establishment. But, most importantly, this playground creates a safe and fun outdoor recreation and play space for thousands of children throughout Richmond and the East Bay.
