For California’s indigenous people, the Delta served like a highway system in a complex trading network moving essential foods and goods between many different tribes.

Vincent Medina, Ohlone and Bay Miwok