

IRON HORSE REGIONAL TRAIL, Concord to Livermore (34.3 miles): Begin in 1986, this multi-use, whole-access trail between the cities of Concord and Pleasanton followed the Southern Pacific Railroad right-of-way established in 1891 and abandoned in 1978. The completed 35-mile Regional Trail connects San Joaquin County line to Susan Bay in Contra Costa County, connecting two counties and nine communities. Representing interagency cooperation and a community-wide effort by individuals and groups, this trail creates an important recreational and commute component for the communities it serves. The trail corridor connects residential and commercial areas, business parks, schools, public transportation (BART, County Connection), open space and parks, regional trails and community facilities. The trail will continue to grow in the future, with connections extending east through Livermore and northward to Martinez. The trail is developed through Marsh Drive near Highway 4 in Concord south through Pleasanton to the western boundary of Livermore. Extensions are planned that will connect Shadow Cliffs Regional Recreation Area through Livermore and farther eastward to San Joaquin County. The Iron Horse Trail's connection with the Alamo Canal Trail in Dublin provides access to the Alameda County Fairgrounds, and a planned extension eastward to the Iron Horse Trail's future extension to Shadow Cliffs from downtown Pleasanton will provide an 11-mile circuit through these two cities.

Throughout the entire length of the trail, opportunities to view the valley ridgeline and landscape features like Mt. Diablo create a pleasant trail experience.

CONCORD (13.49 miles): One of the first Regional Trails established (in 1976), and one of the most popular trails in the Park District system, this multi-use, mostly whole-access trail is a paved pathway suitable for bikers, runners, and equestrians. Created through a cooperative effort of the Contra Costa Water District, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Park District, this trail provides a safe off-road corridor for equestrians, hikers, and runners. The trail connects the BART station in Concord to the Iron Horse Trail, and the future extension to the Iron Horse Trail.

Mandering along the Contra Costa Canal, following a horseshoe-shaped path through central Contra Costa County, the trail connects a number of local parks in Pleasant Hill (Las Junas Park), Walnut Creek (Larkley Park, Heather Farm Park), and Concord (Lime Ridge). It also makes important connections to several regional trails, including the California State Riding and Hiking Trail, the Briones-to-Mt. Diablo Trail, and the Iron Horse Trail, and will connect with the Delta de Anza Trail when that trail is completed through the future Concord Hills Regional Park.

With access to schools, commercial areas, and public transportation (BART, County Connection), this trail is an integral factor in county non-vehicular transportation and also provides significant recreation opportunities in central Contra Costa County. From urban access to rural open space, the Canal Trail provides a pleasant recreational experience and transportation opportunity.

LAFAYETTE-MORAGA REGIONAL TRAIL

(7.65 miles): Established in 1972, the Lafayette-Moraga Regional Trail parallels Las Trampas Creek and St. Mary's Ridge through Lafayette and Moraga. This whole-access trail is intended for hiking, bicycling, and equestrian use. The trail is maintained and operated by the East Bay Regional Park District. It was established largely along utility rights-of-way in cooperation with the cities of Lafayette and Moraga, the Central Contra Costa Sanitary District, and the East Bay Municipal Utility District (EBMUD), and Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

Courting through the Moraga Valley, connecting Las Trampas Ridge to the Oakland Hills and the cities of Lafayette and Moraga, this trail corridor has a rich and varied history. It was once used by mule trains to carry mule trains had passed into Sacramento. Later, when the railroad trains, including the Oakland Antioch and Eastern Railroad, the San Francisco-Sacramento and the Sacramento-Northern, for which the easement was historically named. With the abandonment of the railroad, the corridor became a utility easement and ultimately with the cooperation of local communities, utility districts and the East Bay Regional Park District, a paved multi-use recreational trail serving hikers, bicyclists, and equestrians.

The trail's north end is at Olympic Boulevard and Pleasant Hill Road south of Highway 24 in Lafayette, and it runs to EBMUD's Valle Vista staging area on the outskirts of Moraga, bordering San Leandro Reservoir and Redwood Regional Park. An annual permit is required to hike in EBMUD lands (call 510-287-0459). The trail makes connections to a variety of schools (including St. Mary's College), the Briones-to-Las Trampas Regional Trail, the Lamorinda Trail Loop, local parks (Moraga Commons) and commercial areas in downtown Moraga. One of the first rail-trails in California, this 60-foot-wide recreational trail corridor offers residential access, regional connections, scenic areas, and convenience to local facilities.

OLD MORAGA RANCH TRAIL, Canyon Road to Bollinger Canyon Ranch in Moraga (4.64 miles): This trail has the distinction of being one of the District's oldest regional trails. The hiking and equestrian trail rollercoasters through the scenic hills of Moraga and affords spectacular views of St. Mary's College, the Moraga Valley, and distant landscape features. The steep, hilly terrain provides great opportunities to view soaring raptors and vultures taking advantage of thermal updrafts. Hikers can pick up the trail by parking at Rancho Laguna Park in Moraga and heading north to intercept the trail as it crosses Camino Pablo from EBMUD's Valle Vista staging area. Equestrians can begin at Valle Vista (EBMUD permit required, phone 510-287-0459). The trail ends at Bollinger Canyon Road to the east.

CALIFORNIA STATE RIDING AND HIKING TRAIL, Martinez to Concord (20.35 miles): This historic trail, portions of which were established in the 1940s) provides spectacular views, community access, and a challenging and rewarding experience to trail users of various abilities. When completed, it will connect Martinez to Lime Ridge Open Space. The trail passes from Carquinez Regional Shoreline over the Franklin Hills and makes a connection to the John Muir Historic Site. It passes over and through the hilly residential area of southern Martinez, past city parks (Hidden Lakes, Las Junas) and into Pleasant Hill, where it utilizes a portion of the Contra Costa Canal Trail. It follows the Canal Trail past Walnut Creek's Larkley Park and Heather Farm Park and crosses through Lime Ridge Open Space in Concord. It courses through open space and residential areas of Concord and into Concord's Newhall Community Park. Heading south, the trail reaches Tassajara Valley Road and continues towards Alameda Way. There the trail heads southeast, then southwest, towards Lime Ridge. Along much of its route, the trail can be accessed from a variety of parks and schools.

BRIONES-TO-MT. DIABLO REGIONAL TRAIL (11.78 miles): Spanning the distance between Briones Regional Park and Mt. Diablo State Park, this trail serves the communities of Lafayette and Walnut Creek and makes important connections to the Contra Costa Canal Trail, California State Riding and Hiking Trail, and the Iron Horse Trail. The Briones-to-Mt. Diablo Trail also connects schools, community facilities, and city parks and open space areas, including Briones Regional Park, Larkley Park, Heather Farm Park, Shell Ridge Open Space, Diablo Foothills Regional Park, and Mt. Diablo State Park. This trail is multi-use with paved and unpaved portions, and offers opportunities for trail users of all abilities. Sweeping views of Pleasant Hill and Walnut Creek are afforded from portions of the trail.

Leaving Briones, the trail passes over Acalanes Ridge (Walnut Creek open space) and continues into Larkley Park and past the Alexander Lindsay Museum. It shares a right-of-way with the Contra Costa Canal Trail for a short distance, passes by Heather Farm Park, goes into Shell Ridge Open Space, enters the Park District's Diablo Foothills Regional Park, and finally enters Mt. Diablo State Park, ending at Macedo Ranch. Scenic vistas, wildlife viewing, and beautiful natural settings reward users of this regional trail corridor.

BRIONES-TO-LAS TRAMPAS REGIONAL TRAIL (1.51 miles): When complete, this trail will connect two of the Park District's largest open space parks. The existing portion of this trail, the Briones Regional Park to the Lafayette-Moraga Trail, the City of Lafayette. The segment leading from Briones to the City of Lafayette and approved only for hiking use. Paved portions of the trail pass through the City of Lafayette's BART station on the east end of the Lafayette area of Lafayette, and connect the Lafayette-Moraga Trail at Foyle Drive and Moraga Blvd.

LAS-TRAMPAS-TO-MT. DIABLO REGIONAL TRAIL, Camille Ave. in Alamo to Macedo Ranch Staging, Mt. Diablo State Park (4.30 miles): This hiking and equestrian trail connects Las Trampas Regional Wilderness to Mt. Diablo State Park. Leaving the eastern edge of Las Trampas at Camille Lane in Alamo, the trail goes through Hap Magee Ranch Park, passes under I-680, weaves its way over the ridge, crosses Stone Valley Road in Alamo, ascends the grassland and chaparral-dotted slopes overlooking the valley, and enters Mt. Diablo State Park at Macedo Ranch Gate. Passing through residential and open space areas, it provides convenient access and offers an interesting contrast between development and parkland.

Ancient oaks, rolling hills, and spectacular views greet those willing to challenge this unique regional trail. Access to the trail for equestrians is most convenient at Macedo Ranch Gate at the north end of Green Valley Road above Danville. For hikers, Macedo Ranch Gate on the north end, La Conda Way on the south end, or Oak Hill Park in the middle (at Stone Valley Road and Glenwood Court) are the best access points. At Macedo Ranch, the trail connects with the Briones-to-Mt. Diablo and Green Valley regional trails.

GREEN VALLEY TRAIL, (2.03 miles): The Green Valley Trail is a local access, unpaved hiking and equestrian trail providing convenient entry into Mt. Diablo State Park from the Alamo area. With sweeping views of the San Ramon Valley, this trail makes connections from local residential areas into the rolling hills and open space bordering the state park. It provides access to the equestrian trail system of Mt. Diablo, including the Summit Trail and other major trails in Dan Cook Canyon. The best staging area to access the trail is at Mt. Diablo's Macedo Ranch, staging area on Green Valley Road. From Macedo Ranch, head south along Green Valley Road to intercept the trail where it crosses Green Valley Creek.

DELTA DE ANZA REGIONAL TRAIL (13 miles): This whole access trail is named for the eighteenth century Spanish explorer Juan Bautista de Anza, who was lured in an expedition of discovery by the Sacramento San Joaquin River Delta. The multi-use, hilly, hilly, and equestrian trail generally follows EBMUD's utility corridor and the Contra Costa Water District's canal corridor. Located in Concord in central Contra Costa County, the trail in the east it currently connects to the Parisi Creek Trail in Oakley and, when completed, is planned to intersect with the Iron Horse Regional Trail in Concord. This map shows the trail's western end of the trail where it crosses over the Willow Park and connects to the Parisi Creek Road north of Concord. For coverage of the rest of the trail, see the Eastern Contra Costa Regional Trails map.

Regional Trails provide enjoyment, recreation, and alternative transportation ... Only a few steps from the busy streets of Contra Costa and Alameda counties is a network of beautiful regional trails for hiking, bicycling, and horseback riding. Although these trails pass through the urban heart of the I-680 corridor in the growing valleys of these two counties, they allow the user a leisurely, rural pace, and fresh air and exercise in beautiful surroundings with views of nearby hills.

This regional trail system has evolved over the years to become a vital network of over 100 miles of trails, linking 12 cities, four Regional Fairgrounds, Mt. Diablo State Park, Lime Ridge and Shell Ridge open space areas, numerous schools and municipal parks, job centers, commercial areas, and transit facilities including several BART stations—and the system is being expanded. There are links to Las Trampas and Redwood Regional Parks through East Bay Municipal Utility District watershed lands (an annual permit is needed to hike on EBMUD lands, call 510-287-0459 for information).

This trail system will be expanded to link to the Delta de Anza Regional Trail, providing access eastward to Antioch and Brentwood. Links will be completed from the Dublin-Brimont BART station south to the Alameda County Fairgrounds and east to Livermore and Del Valle Regional Park.

Because trails are convenient they are both popular and functional. The Park District's paved trails are increasingly being utilized as an alternative method of transportation. A 1997 study showed that over one-third of the use of the Iron Horse Trail from Walnut Creek to San Ramon was for transportation purposes. With the increase in population growth expected for this region, the use of paved trails for non-motorized transportation is expected to grow. Trails are an integral part of people's lives and are one of the most popular features of the East Bay Regional Park District system. They can be enjoyed by people of all ages and abilities, so go and enjoy a walk on a trail near you!
